'Skeeters Fight When Attacked

Lex Helms and Basil Newton Wage Bitter Battle With Insects.

Lex Helms and Basil Newton both living in the south part of the city and in proximity to the city's "skeeter-breeding pond," were telling weird tales this morning of a battle to the death with a half-dozen or more of Roy Allen and Louie Carlson's four-year-old mosquitoes, Lex armed with a tennis racket and Newton with a brass nozzle from a hose.

Only by Herculean effort did the two gentlemen save the day. "No quarter" was the battle cry on both sides as back to back they stood and battled valiantly. One ferocious, be-whiskered battler singled out Mr. Newton for hand-to-hand combat and only after repeated blows with the hose nozzle as the Major ably to render him hors du combat.

These insects are the result of the breeding place on South Walnut, nourished on tin cans, old boots, decayed cats and the like and being unmolested so long, evince no fear of a human being. And so long as this public nuisance remains unabated, its stench assailing the nostrils of the residents in that part of the city, just so long it may be said that Hope is not water-melon but mosquito.

And snakes and frogs? Don't mention them. They're just incidental. When you tire of fighting mosquitoes you can dodge a few frogs and snakes, thereby getting variety in your exercise.

Family Fined for Liquor Violation

Mother, 60 Years Old, Is Given Sentence of $200 and Costs.

PINE BLUFF, July 24.—(AP)—Three women and two men, all members of the same family and including a 60-year-old mother, were fined in municipal court here today for violating the prohibition laws.

The five, Mrs. Ella Long, mother; a 27-year-old daughter, Willie; two sons, Leslie and E., and the wife of the latter were arrested last week by a constable after a chase in which it is charged the women destroyed much liquor they were transporting.

The elder Mrs. Long and her sons were fined $200 each and the two other women were given $100 each. Attorneys for the defendants announced they would appeal.

H. Jordan Monk, assistant prosecuting attorney, urged Judge Miller to show no leniency to the women, declaring that the present unpopularity of the prohibition laws was due more to the women violators than to any other cause.

LITTLE ROCK, July 24.—(AP)—J. P. Womack resigned as state superintendent of public instruction today to accept the presidency of the new Henderson State Teachers College at Arkadelphia, to which position he was elected by the board of trustees last Saturday.

Governor Parnell immediately named C. L. Hirst, director in the school plant division of the education department, to serve out Womack's unexpired term for approximately 18 months.

Womack's formal announcement of his acceptance of the college presidency was made before the Rotary club at Arkadelphia at noon today. Before going to Arkadelphia he had left his resignation with a friend to be presented to Governor Parnell this morning.

The Board at the time of electing Womack gave him until Friday of this week to accept the proposition. Womack will assume his duties immediately and prepare for the opening of the fall term. He was serving his second term as state superintendent.

Mr. Hirst was sworn in by Associate Justice of the Supreme Court Frank Smith as soon as the appointment was issued. He said it would be his endeavor to "so administer the department that it would place in reach of the masses of the people elementary high school and collegiate work equal to that offered any other state."

Three Arrested In Raid On Still

Whiskey Captured and Mash Destroyed In Tuesday Skirmish.

Officers Purtle, Burns, Lewallen and deputy constable Jim Bearden, assisted by Sheriff Miller, of Lafayette county and deputies, yesterday raided a still south of Hope, seized twenty gallons of whiskey, destroyed ten barrels of mash and arrested two men, Walter Burns and Jeff Aaron, on charges of possession, operating still and fermenting mash.

In addition to these charges, charge of resisting an officer will be filed against Burns, officers say, following an attempt to prevent the officer from taking possession of a ten gallon keg of whisky.

The raid was under a search warrant issued on affidavit filed by Mr. Bearden and the men arrested, following hearing here, will be turned over to federal officers at Texarkana.

At another place visited by the officers Dale Plumley was arrested on a charge of possession. He entered a plea of guilty when arraigned and was fined $50 and costs.

Sheriff Miller and deputies had been in Hope attending a preliminary hearing as witnesses and were returning home when they joined the local officers on the raid.

The still, a 60-gallon copper affair showing signs of considerable usage, was brought to town and stored with other apparatus seized in the past few weeks.

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark., July 24.—(AP)—Carnival shows with their "games of chance and immodest shows" will be a thing of the past at the Washington County Fair, if the county Federation of Rural Women's Clubs has its way.

The federation recently appealed to the fair board to hold the 1929 fair with carnivals, "if only as an experiment to see if a successful fair cannot be held without the various games of chance and immodest shows." Members of the federation were quoted as saying the carnivals "have a bad influence on the boys and girls."

The following resolution was passed at the last quarterly meeting of the federation, and sent to the fair board.

A New Fight for An Old Goal

THE conditions that surround American life sometimes seem to change so rapidly that we solve one problem only to find ourselves facing it anew in a different guise.

The recent Fourth of July holiday period, in which more than 150 Americans lost their lives, is a case in point.

Approximately 20 years ago the agitation for a "safe and sane Fourth" was started. There was only one objective then—to cut down the use of fireworks. In those days practically every child in the land played with fireworks on Independence Day; and on July 5 the newspapers would tell of scores of deaths caused by these destructive toys, and would relate many additional cases in which children had lost their eyes or hands.

In the course of time, the nation finally got aroused about it. City after city passed laws limiting or prohibiting the sale and use of fireworks. To be sure, fireworks are still to be had; and on this last Independence Day they took several lives. But the old conditions have been changed. Fireworks this year did not kill nearly as many as they did two decades ago.

But in solving the fireworks menace we have allowed another one to grow upon us. Twenty years ago there were practically no automobile fatalities on the holiday; now they are counted by the score.

The fight against dangerous fireworks is nearly over; but the fight against automobile traffic deaths can hardly be said to have begun.

Perhaps one reason is that the fire cracker was a children's toy. It didn't cost adult law-makers anything to prohibit it. The automobile, on the other hand, is used by adults. We bitterly resent restrictions that are placed on our use of it. And, as a result, it takes many, many lives.

A "safe and sane Fourth" is just as desirable a goal now as ever. But we have got to adopt new tactics, and shoot for a new objective, if we are to reach it.

A Cause for Civic Pride

HOW important is the work of the juvenile court, anyway? Good Housekeeping Magazine sent Elizabeth Frazier, staff writer, out to look into the question recently; and Miss Frazier made some rather surprising discoveries.

Where a juvenile court is properly manned and is directed with intelligence, she found it an almost priceless force for good. But too often, she discovered, the juvenile court failed of its purpose simply because it wasn't being handled in the right manner.

As an example of what good juvenile court can do, Miss Frazier cites conditions in Cincinnati, where the court is under the direction of Judge Charles W. Hoffman, one of the nation's leading juvenile authorities.

There are 1200 boys in the Ohio state industrial school; but only 12 of them came from Cincinnati, second largest city in the state.

Hamilton county, in which Cincinnati is located, has fewer inmates in the state's penitentiary in proportion to its population than any other county in the state—including even the most sparsely-settled rural counties.

Surely, those two facts are enough to prove that a good juvenile court is one of the strongest assets a city can have. Yet Miss Frazier estimates that at least 90 per cent of all juvenile courts fail utterly of their purpose; fail because the judge inflicts punishment without trying to get at the cause of delinquency, or because they are understaffed and under-trained.

"Women's organizations can do everything to remedy these conditions if they will," she writes. "First, they should determine if the judge is a real juvenile court judge, employing every available means to assist children and turn them from wrong doing. . . . Next, they should determine if the probation officers are trained workers or merely political appointees."

Cost of Sickness

ONE of the big problems that this generation will have to start solving very soon is the problem presented by the ever-increasing cost of medical and surgical attention.

Bleeker Marquette, executive secretary of the Cincinnati Public Health Federation, declares that "none but the well-to-do can look with unconcern upon the mounting cost of being sick," and points out that Americans pay on an average $2,500,000,000 a year for medical care—more than $20 apiece.

Brothers Under the Skin!

WASHINGTON LETTER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

WASHINGTON — Mr. Rudolph Spreckles, the sugar magnate, who is the only man in town wearing a collar which resembles President Hoover's, is trying to promote a sugar tariff plan which will make everybody happy. Mr. Spreckles is author of one of the numerous sliding scales now being proposed as a method of sliding out from under the outburst of criticism which met the provision in the House tariff bill which boosted the sugar duty to three cents—or 240 cents on Cuban sugar, which is most concerned.

Mr. Spreckles is a sugar refiner and president of the "Spreckels Sugar Corporation." He believes that his scheme will protect the domestic beet and cane producers, the Cubans, the Filipinos, the Porto Ricans and even the consumers themselves.

Another Millionaire
Anyone who professes to be as benevolent as all that naturally lays himself open to suspicion. But it is relatively easy to believe in the sincerity of Mr. Spreckles. He is a millionaire, but he doesn't belong to the union. He turned in his card when he participated actively and expensively in the La Follette presidential campaign of 1924.

Mr. Spreckles says two things ought to be done:

1. Domestic producers and consumers ought to be protected by a sliding scale which would raise the tariff on sugar when the price dropped and lower it when the price rose.

2. The sugar industry ought to be protected from the ruthless competition of Hawaiian planters, who, he says, provide the most serious menace to the domestic producers. Hawaiian sugar, he says, is the nigger in the wood-pile. "I realize that the protection theory is desirable and necessary," he says, "but I am opposed to a flat duty because it must inevitably do injustice to the consuming public. When the world market on raw sugar went up the cost of raw sugar plus the duty and plus refining costs would make a prohibitive price for sugar."

"With the sliding scale, the world price goes up and the duty comes down. Inevitably the world price of sugar is going up, for the Cubans are going to restrict production and establish a single selling agency. They are not now receiving a proper price and are selling below cost of production. The Porto Ricans, the Filipinos and the Hawaiians are making a profit because they have no duty to pay on their sugar."

"The Hawaiians are favored above everyone else because they send their sugar to their own refinery in California. Their western territory cannot consume all the refined sugar which they produce by refining at full capacity and so they have reached out into what normally would be the selling territory of the beet sugar producers. That's where the beet producers find their real competition."

"The Hawaiian planters make sufficient profit on raw sugar to forego any refiner's profit. Domestic beet and cane sugar doesn't compete with duty-free raw sugar. It competes with refined sugar. If the Hawaiians sell without any refining profits they can sell below everyone else."

You certainly have to be alarmed to ride in a rumble seat.

Sometimes, I think the sweetest thing in all the world is listening—No heart but finds surcease from pain In the soft rhythm of night rain; And he is glad again, and strong, Who hears a red bird's winter song; Peace comes beneath gnarled orchard trees To murmurings of summer bees—And when upon some far high hill, Or in some dim wood, green and still, "The flutes of silence" play for me, Then that is very ecstasy. —Selected.

THIS HAS HAPPENED

Molly Burnham and Red Flynn have decided to collaborate on a crime play. The plot is to be taken from real life, and will revolve about the mysterious death of Bernice Bradford, Bernice was poisoned, and Lionel Barrows the lover who stood trial for her murder, subsequently acquitted.

Later Red Flynn, a police court reporter, meets a boy named Perry Ingersoll, who gets intoxicated and admits that he was also a sweetheart of the dead woman.

He tells Red the story of their sordid romance, and Red immediately sees its possibilities as a mystery play—a play centering about the unsolved murder of the Bradford woman. Red visits Molly, who covered the trial, and tells her the amazing story unfolded by young Ingersoll.

They determine to get to work as playwrights immediately. But Molly is suddenly assigned to cover another murder trial—the trial of a gunman, charged with the killing of a night watchman.

Now, Molly is not at all in love with Red Flynn, but engaged, instead, to a young draftsman named Jack Wells who has insisted upon postponing their marriage until such time as he can save a little money.

Mr. Wharton, the city editor, warns her that covering the Mandinello trial will be dangerous business, as the Chicago gunmen are watching developments with deadly interest.

NOW CAN YOU BEAT THAT?

Tag's Story

Well, it's worth more money than you can earn," she told him cruelly.

Jack flushed painfully.

"Molly darling, you didn't come to quarrel with me?"

"I didn't come to be insulted either," she said, and bit her lip on an angry little sob. She patted the brief case in her lap. "I've copy here for a play Jack. Don't you want to hear it?"

"Why of course I do. Are you honestly writing a play, Molly?"

"Well, I'm writing it," she confessed. "But the idea wasn't mine. You know Red Flynn—I mean I've written you about him. He gave me the idea, and we're collaborating on it."

"You're not falling in love with him, are you, Molly?"

She threw back her head and laughed.

"In love with Red!" she chided. "When I've a sweetheart like you? Why, honey, Red is homely and crude, and—oh my goodness, he's nobody a girl would look at twice. But he's awfully nice."

She was too excited to eat but told instead of the night that Red and Slim found Perry Ingersoll. Then she took the papers from her brief case, and read aloud what she had written. Jack listened with ill-concealed annoyance.

"I don't like it, Molly," he said flatly.

"Oh, I don't care," she announced petulantly. "I'm fed up on this wretched trial anyhow."

It was Friday, and court did not sit on Saturday. Impulsively Molly decided to go to New York for over Sunday. It had been a long time since she had seen Jack.

As they left the dining room, Slim drew her aside.

"Now don't tell me I'm crazy," he commanded, "and don't forget that I'm old enough to know what I'm talking about. You're going to get in trouble, if you don't lay off Mandinello. You're singing your stories, and laying things on pretty thick. Wharton says our circulation has jumped 25,000. Maybe it has. What's the blooming circulation worth, if it costs you your neck?"

Molly tried to laugh. "You don't think they'd shoot me, Slim?"

"That's just what I think," he told her shortly. "You notice I don't take any chances? Not on your life I don't. I've toned down my stuff, since they sent Tony Tommy from Chicago, to give us news hounds the once over."

"I'm not afraid," she boasted.

"I told her shortly," he informed her. "That's what they'll say when they write your obituary."

"I'm not afraid," she said. And Jack was waiting at the gate, and in a moment she was in his arms.

"Oh, Jack! Jack!"

"Molly!" he cried. "It's good to see you."

"Oh sure," he parried, "if you They kissed fervently while like that sort of stuff."

you writing filth and muck Good Lord, what's coming over you!" "I don't understand," she faltered.

"Oh, you understand all right," he interrupted brutally. "It's rotten! A sweet little kid like you, running round with police reporters, wanting to write a play about a courtesan and a murder." Molly's painted lips trembled. Silently she shuffled her papers together.

Jack listened with ill-concealed annoyance. "I don't like it, Molly," he said flatly.

SECOND FLOOR PLAN

FIRST FLOOR PLAN

The narrow lot presents a problem in home building but it is an issue to be faced where such a condition exists, and not one to be evaded. Many people are prone to accept the conditions imposed by the narrow lot as making an attractive house out of the question and to accept a "Box" type house.

That is wrong.

A house can be designed to fit a narrow lot and have artistic merit of the first order. It is a matter of mature experience and ability on the part of the architects.

The house illustrated herewith measures twenty-six feet across the front including the extending wing wall and a lot with a frontage of thirty-five feet gives space for a driveway and a good setting.

The plan layout is thoroughly practical and economical while the architectural character of the exterior is above reproach. From the "checker" chimney top to the attractive entrance doorway, from the graceful sweep of the roof to the pattern of the window shutters, there is apparent that stamp of character that marks the work as that of a master designer.

A cellar extends under the entire house.

Cost about $6000.

Complete working plans and specifications this house may be obtained for a nominal sum from the Building Editor. Refer to House H-A-161.

Henry L. Farrell

Made It Final

Alz has been one of the most successful managers in the minor leagues. For years, until recently he was the manager of the club. Worth club of the Texas League. And he is without doubt baseball's most amusing story teller.

He quit his job in Ft. Worth after a public argument with his boss. The boss, the owner of the club, was sitting in a box near the field and he ordered Jakey to use a certain pitcher.

"Then, fellow," Jakey said, "I may be your ball club at this, but it's my ball club every afternoon from 2 until 6 and if it ain't through."

On that Jakey

"You're through," the boss said. And Jakey left the park.

He should worry, though. They said he is going to manage the Chicago White Sox next. But perhaps he should worry. Managers of the White Sox have reasons to worry.

Everybody Don't Boss Him

There have been reports that Dan Howley, who has been a great success as the manager of the St. Louis Browns, is prepared to hand in his ticket at the end of the season. He is said to have complained to friends that the business office was trying to select his pitchers for him and he named the vice president of the club in particular. He told one of his friends that there was a clause in his contract which stipulated that he was to take orders from no one but Phil Ball, the owner of the club. And that he wouldn't take orders from anyone but Ball.

Such Shocking Conduct

The English people take their tennis very seriously and they consider Wimbledon almost as a shrine. There are certain customs that have to be observed as to manner of conduct and dress.

Last year there was a storm of shocked criticism when John Hendon, one of the boys on the American Davis Cup team, appeared on the sacred center court wearing white trousers with black pin stripes. He finally had to purchase a pair that was plain white.

There was some apprehension felt in London when the word came from Paris that Helen Willis was playing without stockings. She is quite an idol and it was feared that her example would set a shocking vogue. But Helen put on her stockings when she went to Wimbledon.

He Did A Terrible Thing

"Smilin' Red" Williams Wants To Commit Fistic Suicide It Seems

That Is, the Fiery Red-Headed Texican, Weighing 170, Shoots A Double-Barreled Challenge At Jack Matlock.

"Smilin' Red" Williams, Paris, Texas, boxer, must be all down-cast and discouraged and almost tired of living these days. Else his liver is out of its orbit and he's suffering from an attack of ingrowing disposition.

Tuesday sports editor of Star received a letter from Mr. Williams in which he expresses a desire to come up here and do battle again, preferably with Jack Matlock though nobody is barred. Says he weighs 170 and is in better shape than he has been in the past two years and that any good 170-pounder ought to be able to give Mr. Matlock a sleeping powder via the old left hook or right cross—or a kick in the pants.

Which is as may be. If Star remembers correctly Mr. Williams met one Jimmie Carter here in an argument and got hit.

During the tournament Bill Tilden had to play one of his matches after a heavy rainstorm and he shocked the customers by removing his shoes and playing in his stockings.

"It was not only dangerous to him but it was in poor taste to do a thing like that in public," one of the London writers said.

We remember seeing Elizabeth Ryan in 1924 take off her shoes on the court when the king and queen were in the royal box and no excitement was caused.

DID YOU KNOW THAT—

Bob Shawkey, the Yankee coach says that Herb Pennock is right again—And Huggins says if he gets right the Yanks will be first—And three American League umpires say that they never saw him have more stuff—Bill McGowan says that he didn't bounce Burky Harris in that game in Washington—Which he got all the raps for—And that it was Campbell who gave the Detroit manager the gate—A Missouri judge gave Joe Judge an "evil-eye"—a stone that rubbed in the palms brings good luck—And Joe has been murdering the ball ever since he got the evil eye—Geo. Moriarty says nice things about the Detroit Tigers in the column that he conducts for the Baseball Magazine—And he says Roy Johnson of the Detroit is a better ball player than Earl Averill of the Cleveland.

Boxing Fans Have Treat Coming Up

If Boxers Live Up To Advance Notices Bout Will Be Warm.

If the boxers caroled for Thursday night's main event live up to advance notices, prospects are mighty good for fans to witness one of the fastest matches yet promoted by Robins and Russell. For this Dub Watson, the Oklahoma wild man, is reported to have a wallop in either fist—and what's more, knows how to put it over.

Steele, the Smackover glove artist who has been seen in action here, is good and he, too, possesses a kick calculated to develop a healthy respect for him once it lands on an opponent. He's a clever defensive boxer too, with plenty speed on his feet. It ought to be one of the best scraps yet seen here.

Fans are yelling long and loud for a finish match between "Black Boy Perry" and "Preacher" Walker. Last time they met the Reverend swatted "The Black Peril" on the proboscis, which was unkind. For Perry had stopped a fast one with that same nose just a few days before with the result it was all out of tune and the jolt the "Preacher" handed didn't help matters any and the fight was over.

Now Perry is contending he can put the yellow boy away for the county and the "preacher" avers it can't be did by the black boy. Both have talked much to no end and fans would like to see them hook up over the eight or ten round route and settle the question of supremacy. In the event they get together our money goes down on the Cubs to win the pennant in the National.

Next Saturday the Revival Meeting will start at this place everybody is invited to attend these services.

"THE WILD PARTY" IDEAL PICTURE FOR CLARA BOW

No more ideal play for the animated talents of Miss Clara Bow has ever been chosen than her latest vehicle, "The Wild Party," which comes to the Saenger theatre for three days beginning Thursday.

"The Wild Party" is a vivacious, fast-moving, all-talking production based on the story by Warner Fabian, famous author of popular novels of the jazz age.

There are several real wild parties in the play, and their watchword seems to be, "When better whoopee is made, Clara will make it."

Girls who are known throughout filmdom for their "It" qualities take part in the production. Dorothy Arzner, director of the picture, spent considerable time selecting the desired types of whoopee-making pep sisters to fill the roles of members of Clara's "gang" in the play.

They Call Her "Tree Tops"

She's North Dakota's first and only aviatrix. And they call her "Tree Tops." Above is Mrs. Florence Klingensmith, 22, in charge of flying activities at Fargo's airport, whose air-enthusiasm caused merchants to buy her a monoplane coupe that she might advertise the town. She hopes to obtain a commercial pilot's license soon.

Not All Good Peaches Are In The Big Orchard

In Tuesday's issue Star had something to say of the fine peaches grown by Mr. Weisenberger, south of town. They were fine, too, but no finer than those brought in Tuesday afternoon by W. C. Thompson, Washington Route, two north of Hope. Which makes it positive that this county, under the same conditions, will produce as finely flavored finely colored fruit as may be raised in Arkansas.

Thanks, Mr. Thompson. They were larpupin' and that's no joke.

"GEORGE WASHINGTON COHEN" COMING TO TOWN

After sinking his entire individuality, apparently, into the school atmosphere, where only sports counted, it was rather a shock to his family to find he still intended to go on the stage, and at eighteen he made his debut. He played opposite Gladys Cooper, the celebrated beauty, Ethel Levy and Teddy Girard before coming to Hollywood, where he has been a welcome fixture for some four years.

The small farms in the outlying districts, consisting of one acre or so, fascinate Davidson by their resemblance to his beloved English countryside and he delights to drive out into the suburbs on Sunday mornings and talk with their proud owners, retailing later the marvelous fruitfulness of what he calls these "bits of ground."

Ash blond, tall and good looking, with a gallant manner to women, Davidson has had considerable success in getting good parts since his arrival, and has played lead in many big pictures.

They have had half of Sunday for baseball games, band concerts and other forms of amusement.

The warden said the trouble had been brewing for weeks. In addition to these inquiries, Governor Roosevelt expected to learn the facts at first hand when he inspects the institution next Monday.

Warden Harry M. Kaiser, in a statement, placed responsibility for the outbreak on a group of "lifers" sent to the prison from other state penal institutions for discipline. Clinton was set aside more than a score of years ago as a "punishment" prison for "tough guys."

The prison houses, at present, 113 who are serving life sentences and 400 who are serving 20 years and up. Others serve shorter terms bring the total to 1568.

The break came as 1300 of these men left the mess hall where they had breakfasted. Suddenly they began to mill about like hornets coming out of a nest. The guards tried to beat their way to the ring leaders, but they were overpowered. The prisoners then, first the carpenter and the weaver shops, smashed the dynamo and left the institution without lights or power.

The prison siren screamed the "prison break" tocsin and the whole town grasped weapons and started for the walls. The convicts formed human pyramids like circus acrobats and flung the topmost man to the edge of the wall above. The guards' guns spat and the prisoners fell back three dead, the others beginning to cover.

The riot lasted five hours.

World War Vets

should expire on July 2, 1927. An act passed by congress on May 29, 1928, amended the World War Veterans' Act extending indefinitely the period in which applications could be filed for government policies by those entitled to them. In the few months before the original time limit expired approximately 250,000 men filed applications for policies.

The only drive for insurance conducted by Hope American Legionnaires was in June, 1927, just before the original time limit expired. In this campaign, approximately $100,000 worth of insurance was bought by county ex-service men.

Under the amended law the government will grant the ex-service man insurance in seven forms of policies against death or total permanent disability. He may take out a policy for $1000 or $10,000 or for any multiple of $500 between these sums.

Advantages to the government insurance are a lower rate, the absence of any distinction of hazardous occupations, and to the negro veteran, the same rate as to the white man. Other insurance costs more when sold to negroes because of the higher death rate, Hamm points out.

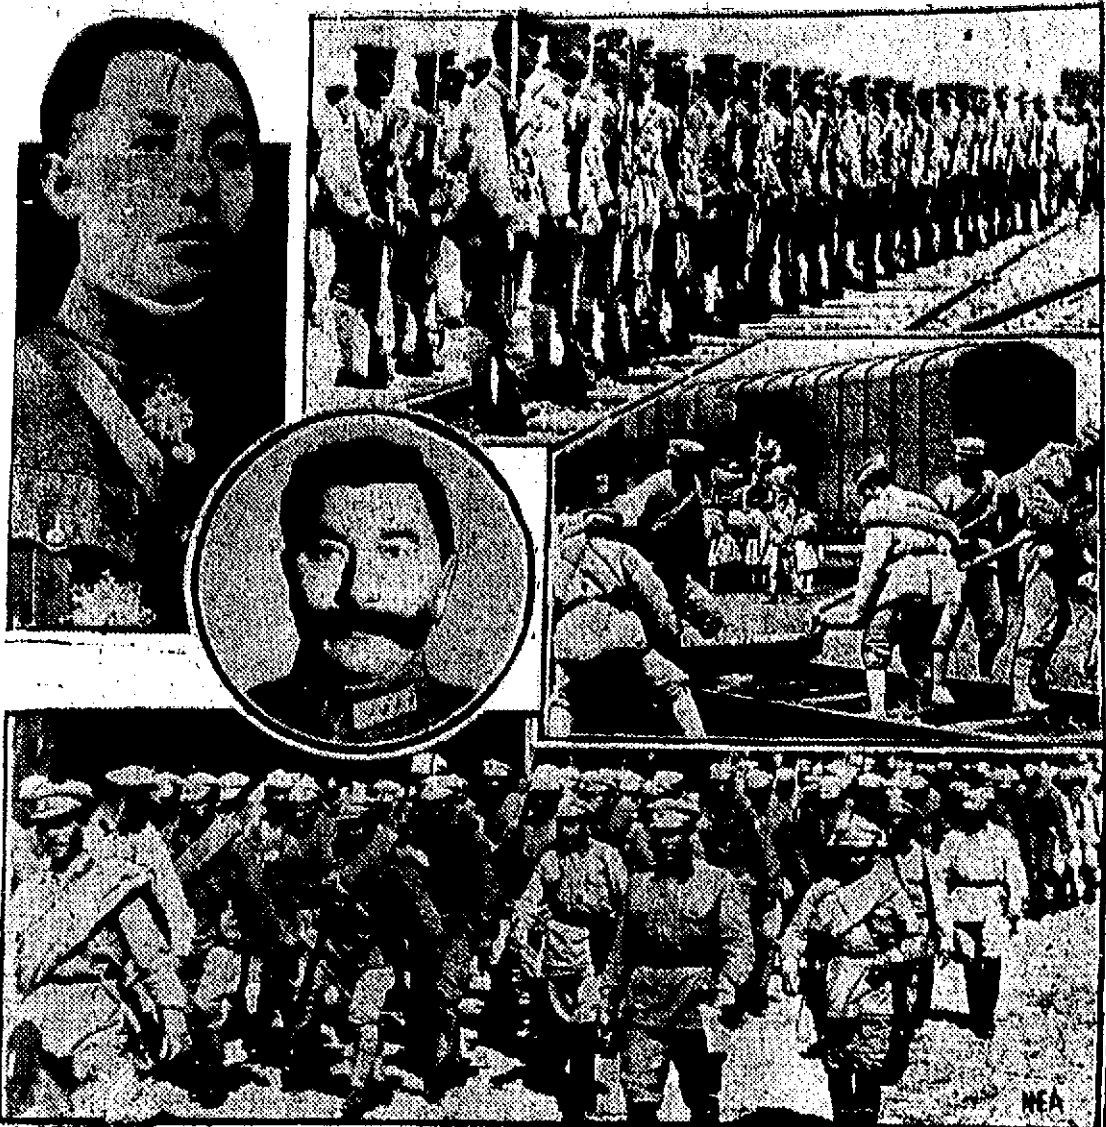

Physical examinations are necessary before the insurance may be taken out. This examination will be made free of charge at any regional office or hospital of the United States Veterans' Bureau. The examination may also be secured, at the expense of the applicant, from any reliable physician licensed to practice medicine.

Chinese and Russians Mobilize as War Threat Looms

The news spread about the countryside that a trans-Atlantic plane had landed, and soon all roads led to the little flying field at Santander, Spain, where the American monoplane Pathfinder had been forced down after spanning the ocean. Here you see the craft piloted by Roger Q. Williams and Lewis A. Yancey as it was surrounded by curious crowds and guarded by local troops during its brief stop-over for fuel at the Spanish town. The take-off of the Pathfinder from Santander on the last leg of its journey to Rome is pictured at the top.

U.S. makes Dollars SMALLER
PLYMOUTH makes them LARGER

IN WASHINGTON, the government presses are turning out smaller dollar bills. In Detroit, the huge Plymouth plant, largest of its kind in the world, is turning out a motor car that makes the dollar bigger in purchasing power.

Not in all automobile history has another such value appeared in the low-priced field. There has never been another low-priced car to compare with the improved Plymouth in full-size roominess—in Chrysler-designed stylishness—in Chrysler-like briskness and smoothness—in all-around quality, ability and stamina.

In every respect, Plymouth is the biggest thing in its class. Compare—you'll be astonished how much bigger in value Plymouth has made the dollar.
